

Garlic can decrease inflammation!

Garlic contains a compound called allicin, which has been shown to decrease levels of inflammatory cytokines (cell signaling molecules that start an immune response). This decrease in cytokines means less inflammation overall.